

ILOILO & GUIMARAS

THE HOST'S GUIDEBOOK

The sweetest island in the Philippines — and the city that feeds it.

40 places, mapped and linked

The southern heritage trail — four Spanish-colonial churches, one UNESCO facade

Beaches, family days and the country's bike capital

Where we'd stay — two condos in Iloilo Business Park

SEPTEMBER 2026 · COMPLIMENTARY FOR OUR GUESTS

Contents

- 03 Editor's Letter
Why September is the locals' season

- 04 The Map
Forty places across Iloilo and Guimaras

- 06 September in Iloilo
Habagat, and how to plan around it

- 07 The Food City
Batchoy, seafood shacks and the buffet

- 10 Calle Real & the City Heritage
Museums, mansions and the feminist church

- 12 The Southern Trail
Tigbauan to Miagao and San Joaquin

- 14 Guimaras
Mangoes, monks and a floating lunch

- 16 Active Iloilo
The bike capital, on two wheels and two feet

- 17 Family Days
Aquariums, island-hopping and 456 steps

- 18 The Palladium
Our Iloilo Business Park studio

- 19 SMDC Style Residences
Pool and skyline view

- 20 The Practical Page
Ferries, money, weather, getting around

- 21 Three Perfect Days
Built for September weather

- 22 Credits
Photography and sources

Carabao mango — the fruit Guimaras is famous for. Obsidian Soul / Wikimedia Commons, CC0

A NOTE ON THIS GUIDEBOOK

Every recommendation here is one we actually send our guests to. Every place in these pages is named on the maps on pages 4–5, and every entry links straight to Google Maps — tap it and your phone will take you there.

See the live guidebook on Airbnb ↗

September belongs to the locals

September is not the month the brochures sell you. The mango harvest is long finished, Dinagyang is four months away in January, and the southwest monsoon — the habagat — is still working its way through the afternoons. Which is exactly why we like it.

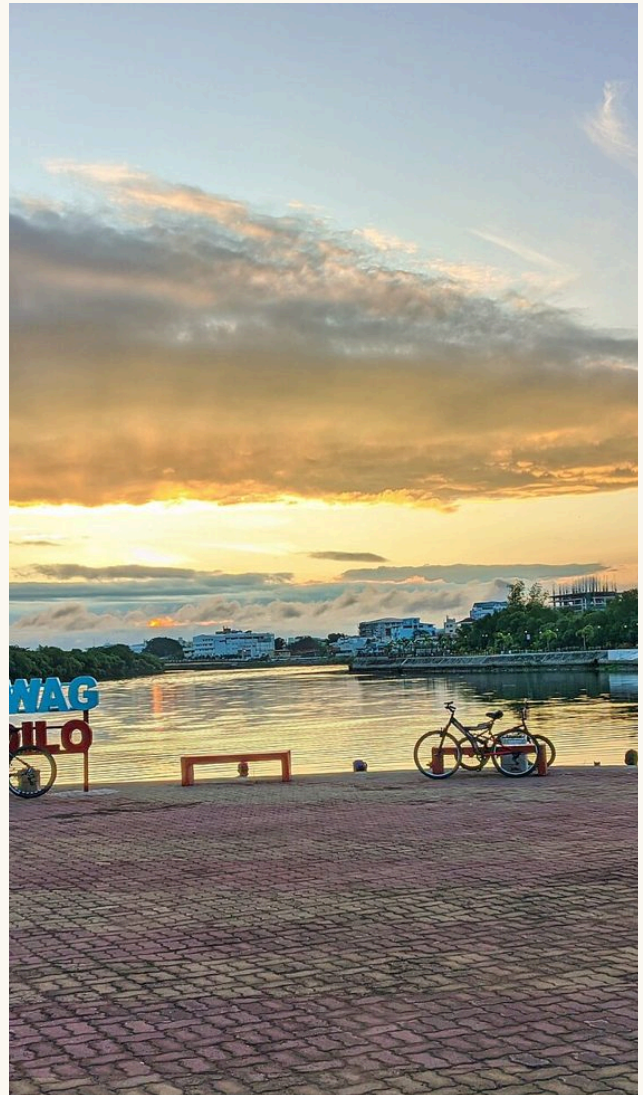

The ferries to Guimaras are quiet. Raymen Beach on a Tuesday belongs to whoever shows up. You can walk into Breakthrough at seven on a Friday and get a table by the water. The heritage churches down the coast — Tigbauan, Guimbal, Miagao, San Joaquin — are empty enough that you can hear your own footsteps on the coral stone.

What September asks of you is a little flexibility. Rain arrives in the afternoon more often than not, and it arrives hard. So we have built this issue around that rhythm: mornings outdoors, afternoons with a roof, evenings out when the air has cooled and the city is at its best. There is a page of rainy-day options on page 6 — the same ones we use ourselves.

The forty places in these pages are the ones we send guests to and the ones we go back to. Every one is pinned on the map and linked to Google Maps. Tap and go.

Shareen Joy

Superhost · Iloilo City · Two years hosting

The Iloilo River Esplanade at dusk — the closest real attraction to both our condos. Johnngaje92 / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY-SA 4.0

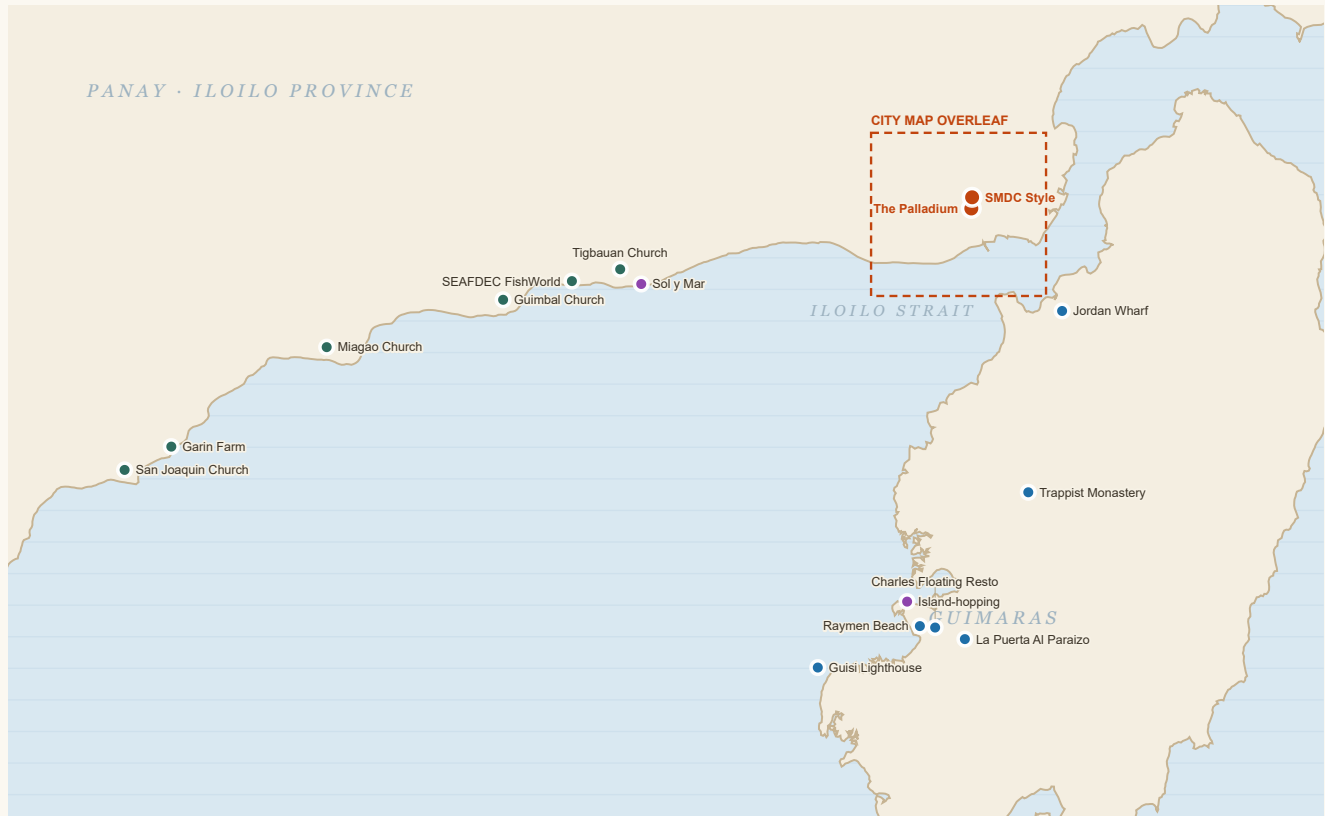

THE SHORT VERSION

Mornings for the coast and the churches. Afternoons for museums, malls and the aquarium. Evenings for the Esplanade, Festive Walk and a long seafood dinner. Keep the ferry day flexible and watch the weather.

Iloilo & Guimaras

The coast road south, the ferry crossing, and the island. Every place is named and linked — tap any pin to open Google Maps. The dashed box is the city, mapped overleaf.

● Our stays ● Southern trail ● Guimaras ● Family days

Coastline data © OpenStreetMap contributors (ODbL). Pins link to Google Maps.

THE SOUTHERN TRAIL

Tigbauan, Guimbal, Miagao and San Joaquin run in a line along one coast road — 40 minutes to 90 minutes from the condos. Garin Farm sits ten minutes past San Joaquin. Full section on page 12.

GUIMARAS

Ferries cross from Parola wharf to Jordan in about 15 minutes for around ₱50. The Trappist monastery, Raymen Beach and the floating restaurants are all inside a half-day loop. Page 14.

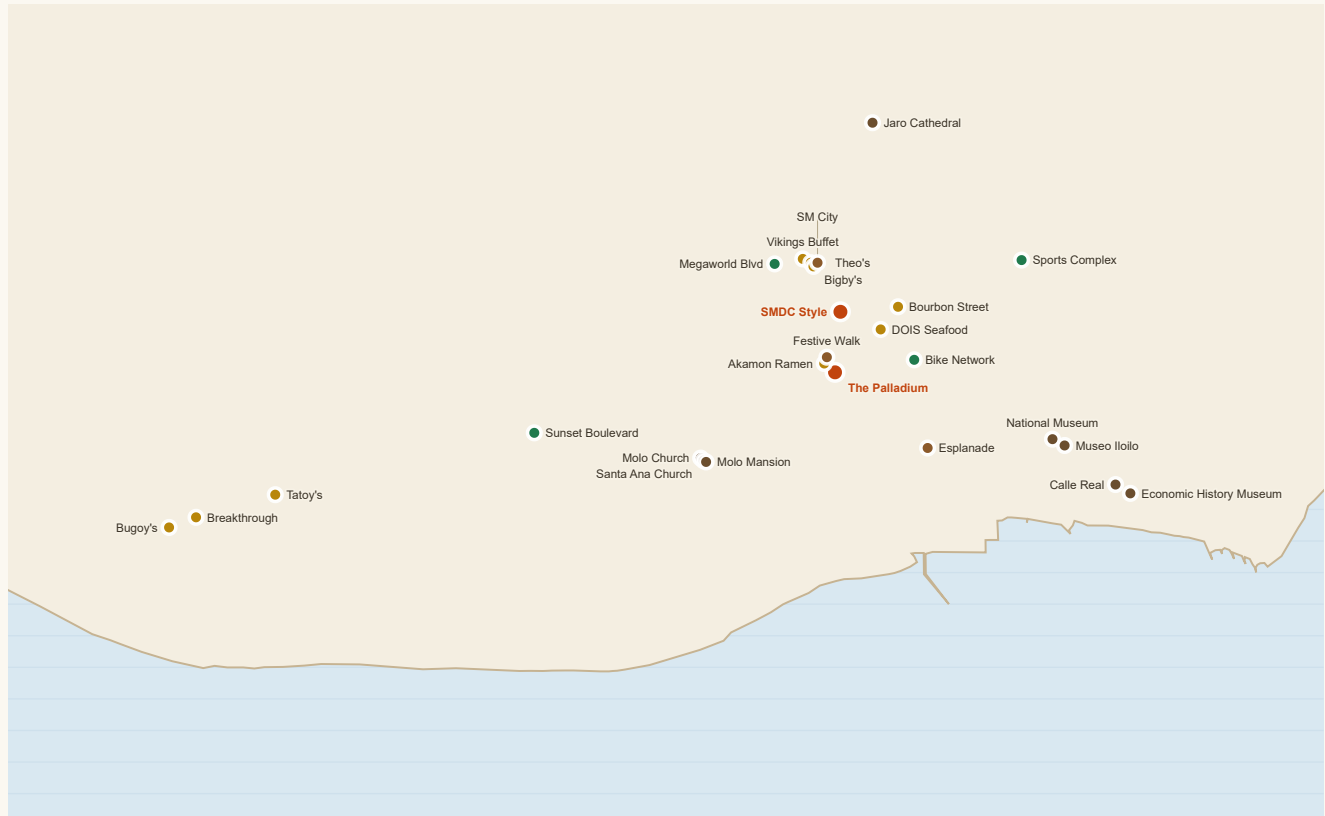

FAMILY DAYS

SEAFDEC FishWorld and Sol y Mar sit together on the Tigbauan coast, 45 minutes south — a beach day and a rainy-day aquarium in the same trip. Page 17.

Iloilo City

Mandurriao, Molo, Jaro and the old commercial district. Both our condos sit in Iloilo Business Park, marked in red.

● Our stays ● Food & drink ● City heritage ● City life ● Active & cycling

Coastline data © OpenStreetMap contributors (ODbL). Pins link to Google Maps.

ON OUR DOORSTEP

Festive Walk, Akamon, Bourbon Street and the Megaworld boulevards are a walk from both condos. SM City and Vikings are ten minutes north.

THE HERITAGE RING

Molo, Jaro and the Calle Real museums sit on three sides of the centre — none more than 20 minutes away, and most of them free. Page 10.

THE SEAFOOD COAST

Tatoy's, Breakthrough and Bugoy's line the western shore in Villa Arevalo, about 20 minutes out. Go at sunset. Page 8.

September in Iloilo

September sits inside the wet season, and the southwest monsoon — the habagat — is the defining fact of the month. Expect warm, humid days in the low thirties, and rain that tends to arrive in the afternoon rather than lasting all day.

It is rarely a washout. Most September days give you a bright, usable morning, a heavy hour or two after lunch, and a clear, cooled-down evening. Plan accordingly and you will barely notice it; plan a rigid itinerary and it will beat you.

THREE RULES WE LIVE BY

1. Do the coast in the morning. The southern churches, Guimaras, the beaches — all of it before noon if you can.

2. Keep the ferry day flexible. Crossings to Guimaras are suspended in rough weather. Have a Plan B and go on the calm day, not the scheduled one.

3. Carry the small things. A folding umbrella, sandals you do not mind soaking, and cash — outside the malls, cards are not universal.

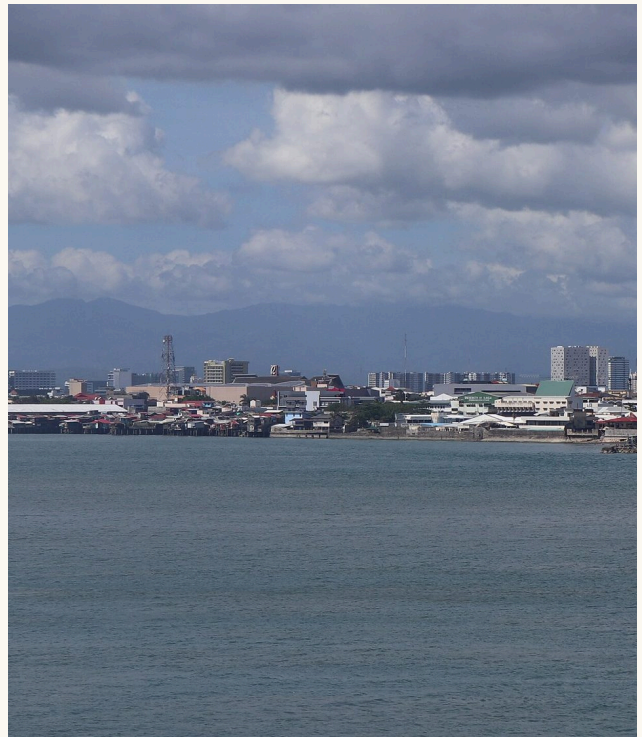

AND ONE THING TO SKIP

Dinagyang, the city's great festival, is in January, not September. If a listing promises you a September festival, it is selling you something.

WHEN THE RAIN WINS

Six roofs worth having

SEAFDEC FishWorld aquarium · Museum of Philippine Economic History · National Museum Iloilo · Museo Iloilo · SM City Iloilo · Festive Walk's covered arcades. All are air-conditioned, and four of the six are free.

Mandurriao across the strait. Patrickroque01 / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY-SA 4.0

TYPHOON SEASON, HONESTLY

The Philippines sits in a typhoon belt and September is inside the active window. Iloilo is more often sideswiped than hit directly, but if a storm signal is raised, ferries stop and plans change. Check PAGASA each morning — and message us. We live here, and we will tell you honestly whether to go.

Batchoy, and everything after

La Paz batchoy, the noodle soup born in this city. Ralff Nestor Nacor / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY-SA 4.0

Iloilo is a food city before it is anything else. It gave the country La Paz batchoy — pork broth, noodles, chicharon crushed over the top — and pancit molo, the dumpling soup named for the district that invented it. Eat both on day one, in the districts they are named for, and the city starts making sense.

After that it is seafood. The coast west of the city is lined with open-air houses where the catch comes in that morning and is cooked simply — grilled, or soured into sinigang, or turned into kinilaw with vinegar and ginger. Tatoy's and Breakthrough are the institutions; Bugoy's has the sunset. None of them require a reservation on a weekday, and all of them expect you to share.

Then there is the newer city — the ramen counter in Megaworld, the Italian bakery at the mall, the buffet that Ilonggo families book for birthdays. It is a young cafe town layered on top of an old cooking town, and both halves are worth your time.

By the water

Evening on the Iloilo River Esplanade. Johngaje92 / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY-SA 4.0

● Tatoy's Manokan and Seafood

Native chicken and morning-caught seafood on the beach — Tatoy's has fed Iloilo for decades, cooked in traditional Ilonggo styles. Go with a group; the portions assume you brought one.

40 locals recommend

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Breakthrough Restaurant

Fresh seafood cooked the traditional Ilonggo way, served in Villa Arevalo close enough to the water to hear it. A short drive from the city, and worth the trip at sunset.

44 locals recommend

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Bugoy's Seafood Resto

Grilled seabass, adobong pusit and buttered shrimp in a woodsy room with big windows facing Guimaras. Easy parking and a playground for children. Best at sunset, when the light goes gold over the strait.

7 locals recommend

Open in Google Maps ↗

● DOIS Seafood Bar and Big Plates

The newer entry on the seafood circuit — Ilonggo classics scaled up to big shared plates, without the drive out of town.

Open in Google Maps ↗

In the new city

● Akamon Ramen & Sushi

Proper tonkotsu in the Megaworld district, minutes from both our condos — the wet-evening dinner we default to.

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Bigby's Cafe

An Iloilo institution for big American-Filipino comfort plates in a cheerfully cluttered room. Order the Rack-a-Bye-Baby ribs or the CDO sinuglaw.

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Vikings Luxury Buffet

An enormous international buffet at SM City Southpoint: sushi bars, carving stations, live counters and a wall of desserts. Book ahead for weekend dinners and come genuinely hungry.

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Theo's Restaurant & Bakery

Handmade pasta, wood-fired pizza and freshly baked bread alongside classic pastries. Cosy enough for a casual lunch, handsome enough for a date.

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Bourbon Street Bar and Grill

Smallville's dining and nightlife anchor: an American-inspired menu, live music and a serious drinks list.

Open in Google Maps ↗

STAY WHERE THE FOOD IS

Akamon, Bigby's, Vikings, Theo's and the whole Festive Walk parade are within a ten-minute walk or ride of both our condos in Iloilo Business Park. On a wet evening that matters more than you would think.

The Palladium — see the listing ↗

SMDC Style — see the listing ↗

Calle Real

The commercial heritage district along J.M. Basa Street. Ralph1993 / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY-SA 4.0

Iloilo got rich on sugar and textiles, and it built accordingly. The proof is still standing along J.M. Basa Street — Calle Real — where art deco and neoclassical facades run block after block, most of them still in use as shops and offices rather than preserved behind glass.

Walk it in the morning, then step into the Museum of Philippine Economic History in the restored Ynchausti building to find out how the money was actually made. It is free and air-conditioned — one of the better places to be when the afternoon rain starts. Closed Mondays.

Churches, mansions and museums

Molo Church. Philip Nalangan / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY 4.0

● Santa Ana Parish, Molo

A Gothic-Renaissance coral-stone church known as the “feminist church” — all sixteen saints lining the nave are women. The easiest heritage stop in the city, and best paired with a bowl of pancit molo.

47 locals recommend

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Molo Mansion

A restored 1926 heritage mansion facing Molo Church, now home to a cafe and local craft shops. Free to enter and one of the prettiest photo stops in the city.

47 locals recommend

Open in Google Maps ↗

● National Shrine of Our Lady of Candles

The seat of the Church in Western Visayas and, famously, a cathedral whose belfry stands across the street from the church. Climb to the Marian image on the facade, then walk Jaro Plaza.

54 locals recommend

Open in Google Maps ↗

Jaro Cathedral. Ralff Nestor Nacor / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY-SA 4.0

● Museum of Philippine Economic History

Housed in the restored 1920s Ynchausti building on Calle Real, this National Museum branch traces how sugar, textiles and trade built Iloilo. Free, air-conditioned, closed Mondays.

Open in Google Maps ↗

● National Museum of the Philippines — Iloilo

The best place to see the Oton Gold Death Mask, the pre-colonial burial mask excavated in Oton in 1967. Gallery 2 opened in 2023. Free admission, closed Mondays.

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Museo Iloilo

The first government-built museum outside Manila, holding pre-colonial gold, burial jars and religious carving from across Panay. Small enough to see properly in an hour.

25 locals recommend

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Calle Real (J.M. Basa Street)

A heritage zone of grand old commercial buildings, with cafes and stalls at street level — the facades above them tell the story of Iloilo's sugar money.

Open in Google Maps ↗

Four churches, one coast road

Santo Tomás de Villanueva, Miagao — a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Bert Andone / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY-SA 4.0

One road runs southwest out of Iloilo City along the coast, and strung along it are four of the finest Spanish-colonial churches in the Philippines. You can drive the whole thing in a morning, or take a Ceres bus from Molo terminal and do it slowly.

Go in order: Tigbauan at forty minutes, Guimbal at fifty, Miagao at an hour and a quarter, San Joaquin at ninety minutes. Miagao is the UNESCO site and the reason most people come — its yellow sandstone facade carves St. Christopher into a coconut tree, Spanish Baroque rewritten in a Filipino idiom. San Joaquin is the strange one: the only church facade in the country that depicts a battle rather than a saint.

All four are free to enter. Pair San Joaquin with Garin Farm, ten minutes away, and you have a full and genuinely memorable day.

Stop by stop

San Joaquin. Shubert Ciencia from Nueva Ecija, Philippines / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY 2.0

● Santo Tomás de Villanueva, Miagao

A UNESCO World Heritage Site and the church every photographer in the country knows — its yellow sandstone facade carves St. Christopher into a coconut tree, a Filipino twist on Spanish Baroque. Free entry; go mid-morning when the light hits the facade.

22 locals recommend · 1 hr 15 min from the condos

Open in Google Maps ↗

● San Joaquin Parish Church

The only church in the Philippines whose facade shows a battle, not a saint: a coral-stone relief of the 1859 Spanish victory at Tetuan, Morocco. The Campo Santo cemetery on the hill nearby is worth the extra stop.

1 hr 30 min from the condos

Open in Google Maps ↗

Tigbauan. Patrickroque01 / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY-SA 4.0

● Guimbal Church

Built from golden yellow sandstone quarried in Guimaras, this is the warmest-looking church on the coast, especially in late afternoon light. Look for the Spanish-era watchtowers along the shoreline.

50 min from the condos

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Tigbauan Church

An 1867 coral-stone church with an ornate Baroque facade and, inside, a striking mosaic sanctuary added in 1994 — unlike anything else on the coast. The natural first stop heading south.

40 min from the condos

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Garin Farm

Iloilo's most photographed day trip: a hillside farm-resort where 456 white steps climb to the "Stairway to Heaven". Entrance around ₱400–500; start before 9am to beat the heat, and wear real shoes.

15 locals recommend · 1.5–2 hrs from the condos

Open in Google Maps ↗

DOING IT WITHOUT A CAR

Ceres buses leave Molo terminal through the day for the southern towns. Tell the conductor which church you want and they will drop you at the door. Coming back, flag anything heading north on the highway.

Fifteen minutes across the water

A cove in Nueva Valencia, Guimaras. A.C.T. Alejandro / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY-SA 4.0

Guimaras is close enough to see from the city and far enough to feel like a different country. Ferries leave Parola wharf through the day and cross to Jordan in about fifteen minutes for around fifty pesos. Hire a tricycle or van at the wharf and loop the island in half a day.

What you are here for: mangoes that genuinely taste better than mangoes elsewhere, coves with almost no one on them, a working Cistercian monastery whose shop sells the best pasalubong in the region, and a lunch eaten barefoot on a bamboo platform moored offshore.

Bring cash — ATMs are scarce past Jordan. And check the weather: crossings stop when the strait gets rough, which in September it sometimes does.

The half-day loop

Guimaras Island

Mangoes with a serious claim to being the world's sweetest grow here, and the island has stayed gloriously undeveloped: white coves, limestone islets and roads winding through mango orchards, with almost nothing built taller than the trees.

26 locals recommend

● Trappist Monastery

The only Cistercian monastery in the Philippines, where the monks keep a life of silence, work and prayer. Visitors are welcome at Mass and to walk the gardens, but the shop is the real draw: mango jams, piaya and candies made by the monks — the best pasalubong on the island. Dress modestly and keep your voice low.

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Raymen Beach, Alubihod

The island's best-loved white-sand beach, on a calm shallow cove, and the launch point for island-hopping boats out to Guisi and the islets. Come on a weekday if you can, and negotiate the boat rate before you board.

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Charles Floating Restaurant

A bamboo cottage moored offshore where lunch is whatever the boat brought in that morning, eaten barefoot over the water with a rope swing off the deck. Go on a calm, clear day; order the grilled fish and a mango shake.

Open in Google Maps ↗

● La Puerta Al Paraizo

Twenty rooms across ten cottages on a headland in Nueva Valencia, with the pool and restaurant looking out over the channel. Quieter than the Alubihod resorts — ask for a cottage on the view side.

Open in Google Maps ↗

GETTING THERE

Parola wharf → Jordan. ~15 min, ~₱50, boats through the day. About 20 minutes from the condos to the wharf. Bring cash and check the weather before you set out.

THE MANGO TRUTH

Guimaras carabao mangoes are protected by strict quarantine rules — no mango material enters the island. It is why the fruit stayed as good as it did. Buy jams and dried mango at the Trappist shop; buy fresh fruit at the roadside.

Ride the capital

Iloilo has spent a decade building protected bike lanes, and it now claims the title of the country's cycling capital with a straight face. The network links the River Esplanade, the University Loop and Sunset Boulevard, with racks at the Esplanade so you can stop and walk.

It is flat, it is scenic, and it is as safe as urban cycling gets in the Philippines. If you ride at home, ride here. If you do not, this is a forgiving place to start.

Runners get the same infrastructure. The Esplanade at dawn is full of them, and Sunset Boulevard at dusk is the city's unofficial evening gathering.

TIMING

Ride or run before 8am, or after 5pm. Between those hours in September the heat and the humidity will find you out. Carry more water than you think.

● Iloilo City Bike Network

The protected network itself — Esplanade to University Loop to Sunset Boulevard, with racks at the Esplanade so you can stop and walk. Ride early: by nine the heat is real.

Flat · Beginner-friendly

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Iloilo Sunset Boulevard

Just shy of five kilometres of coastal road along the Iloilo Strait, and the city's favourite place to run, ride or simply watch the light go. Cyclists, joggers and families share it every evening.

4.99 km · Coastal

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Megaworld Boulevard

Wide, car-light avenues wrapping Iloilo Business Park — the easiest early-morning jog or beginner ride, and it starts at our front door.

Steps from both condos

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Iloilo Sports Complex

The city's public athletics hub in La Paz: an oval track, football pitch and swimming pool, busy with local clubs in the late afternoon.

Track · Pool · Pitch

Open in Google Maps ↗

FROM OUR DOOR

Both condos sit inside Iloilo Business Park, which means wide, low-traffic boulevards from the moment you step out — and the Esplanade is a short ride away.

Bring the children

Guimbal, on the southern coast road — one of the four churches on the family day out. Ryomaandres / Wikimedia Commons, CC BY-SA 4.0

● SEAFDEC FishWorld

A marine science museum and aquarium run by SEAFDEC's research station — comfortably the best rainy-day stop with children on this coast. Open weekdays 8–12 and 1–5; weekends by appointment. Around ₱50 for adults and ₱30 for children, seniors and PWD. Call ahead to confirm.

45 min south

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Soly Mar Family Beach Resort

A rustic, tree-shaded beach property in Tigbauan with cottages, dipping pools, pavilions and a pizzeria facing the sea — a full beach day without the ferry crossing. Near-empty on weekdays.

45 min south

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Island-hopping from Alubihod

Boats run from Raymen Beach out to Guisi and the limestone islets — the single best half-day a family can have on Guimaras. Life vests are provided; negotiate the rate before boarding.

Guimaras

Open in Google Maps ↗

● Garin Farm

456 white steps, farm animals and a panoramic view over the sea. A full day out that older children will still be talking about at dinner; start early and carry water.

1.5–2 hrs south

Open in Google Maps ↗

WET AFTERNOON, SMALL CHILDREN

SEAFDEC FishWorld first, then the mall. Both are indoors, both are cheap, and both survive a downpour.

BOTH OUR CONDOS

Pool access, fast Wi-Fi and a kitchen — the three things that make travelling with children survivable.

WHERE WE'D STAY · 01

The Palladium

Entire condo · Iloilo Business Park · 2 guests · 1 bedroom · 1 bath

A quiet, warmly lit studio in the middle of Iloilo Business Park — which means Festive Walk, the ramen counters, the malls and the Esplanade are all a walk or a very short ride away. Fast Wi-Fi that holds a video call, a pool downstairs, and a balcony for the evening.

It is the address we recommend to first-time visitors: all three of our perfect days start and end within a short walk of this door.

GUEST FAVOURITE

Airbnb's badge for its most consistently loved homes, earned on ratings alone.

- ✓ Fast Wi-Fi · ✓ Pool · ✓ Kitchen
- ✓ Steps from Festive Walk
- ✓ Superhost, two years hosting

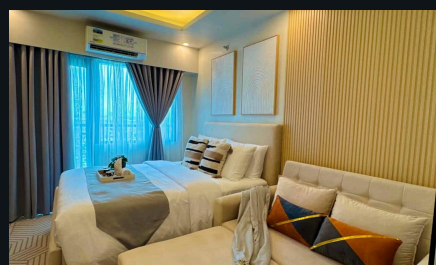

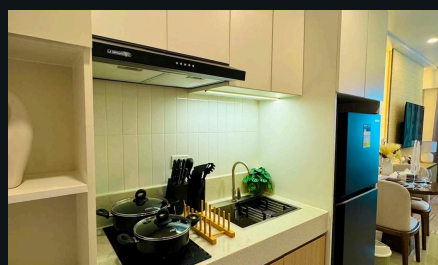

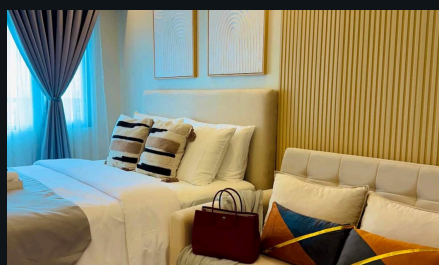

BOOK THE PALLADIUM →

airbnb.com/h/9mnwmegaworld

WHERE WE'D STAY · 02

SMDC Style Residences

Entire condo · Mandurriao · 2 guests · 1 bedroom · 1 bath

A bright studio with a pool and a skyline view, in the same Mandurriao district — close to SM City, the Esplanade and the business park, with the same easy access to everything in these pages.

Built for the longer stay: morning laps in the pool, the skyline from the window, and SM City and the Esplanade within easy reach.

LISTING HIGHLIGHTS

Dive right in. Beautiful, walkable, and one of the few pools in the district.

- ✓ Pool & skyline view · ✓ Fast Wi-Fi
- ✓ Kitchen · ✓ Walkable district
- ✓ Superhost, two years hosting

BOOK SMDC STYLE →

airbnb.com/rooms/1719434136788733157

The page to screenshot

Getting around

Grab works well in the city. Jeepneys and modern minibuses run the main corridors; tricycles handle short hops. For the southern churches, Ceres buses leave Molo terminal through the day.

To Guimaras

Ferries from Parola wharf to Jordan, roughly every hour through the day, ~15 minutes, around ₱50. Suspended in rough weather.

Money

Cash outside the malls. ATMs are easy in the city and scarce on Guimaras — draw before you cross.

Weather

Check PAGASA each morning in September. Afternoon rain is normal; storm signals are not.

Language

Hiligaynon is the local language; English is spoken almost everywhere. Madamo gid nga salamat — thank you very much.

Airport

Iloilo International, about 40 minutes from the condos. Grab is reliable; book it the night before for an early flight.

Tipping

Not obligatory. Rounding up, or ten percent for good service, is generous and appreciated.

Safety

Iloilo is one of the safer cities in the country. Normal city sense applies; the Esplanade and Business Park are busy and well-lit at night.

EAT THIS, AT LEAST ONCE

La Paz batchoy — the noodle soup born here.

Pancit molo — dumpling soup from Molo district.

Kinilaw or sinuglaw — raw fish, vinegar, ginger.

Guimaras mango — in any form you find it.

Piaya from the Trappist shop.

Mandurriao from the balcony at SMDC Style Residences.

ASK US

We live here. Message us through Airbnb before or during your stay — about the weather, the ferry, a table, or where to go on a wet Tuesday. We would rather you asked.

Three perfect days

Built around September weather: coast in the morning, shelter in the afternoon, the city in the evening.

01 The city, slowly

Morning	Batchoy in La Paz, then Calle Real on foot and the Museum of Philippine Economic History.
Afternoon	National Museum Iloilo (free) and Museo Iloilo (a small fee, worth it) — both air-conditioned, both closed Mondays.
Late	Molo Church and Molo Mansion, then pancit molo where it was invented.
Evening	The Esplanade at sunset, dinner at Festive Walk.

02 South to Miagao

Early	On the road by 7. Tigbauan Church, then Guimbal.
Mid-morning	Miagao — the UNESCO facade, best in morning light.
Lunch	San Joaquin, then the Campo Santo on the hill.
Afternoon	Garin Farm, ten minutes away (the steps are hot by now — pace yourself), or SEAFDEC FishWorld if it rains.
Evening	Back north for seafood at Breakthrough or Tatoy's.

03 Across to Guimaras

Early	Parola wharf, first calm boat to Jordan. Check the weather the night before.
Morning	Hire a van at the wharf. Trappist Monastery for pasalubong.
Midday	Raymen Beach at Alubihod, or a floating lunch at Charles.
Afternoon	Island-hop to Guisi and the islets — negotiate the rate first.
Evening	Ferry back, dinner at Bugoy's for the sunset over the strait.

IF YOU ONLY HAVE ONE DAY

Do Day 2. The southern trail is the thing this region has that nowhere else does, and Miagao alone justifies the drive. Guimaras runs it close — but it needs a calm strait, and Day 2 needs nothing.

BASE YOURSELF WELL

All three days start and end in Mandurriao. Both our condos sit at the centre of it.

The Palladium ↗
SMDC Style Residences ↗

Credits & sources

PHOTOGRAPHY

Interior and property photographs are our own. Location photography is reproduced from Wikimedia Commons under the licences noted below.

Batchoy from Iloilo City, Aug 2024.jpg

Ralff Nestor Nacor · CC BY-SA 4.0 · Source ↗

Iloilo Calle Real.jpg

Ralph1993 · CC BY-SA 4.0 · Source ↗

Iloilo River Esplanade Sunrise.jpg

Johngaje92 · CC BY-SA 4.0 · Source ↗

Beach in Nueva Valencia, Guimaras.jpg

A.C.T. Alejandro · CC BY-SA 4.0 · Source ↗

Guimbal Church facade.jpg

Ryomaandres · CC BY-SA 4.0 · Source ↗

Iloilo Mandurriao skyline Iloilo Strait (Iloilo City; 11-28-2024).jpg

Patrickroque01 · CC BY-SA 4.0 · Source ↗

Jaro Cathedral, Iloilo City, Aug 2024 (2).jpg

Ralff Nestor Nacor · CC BY-SA 4.0 · Source ↗

Carabao mangoes (Philippines).jpg

Obsidian Soul · CC0 · Source ↗

The Fortress Church of Miagao.jpg

Bert Andone · CC BY-SA 4.0 · Source ↗

Molo Church Iloilo City.jpg

Philip Nalangan · CC BY 4.0 · Source ↗

San Joaquin, Iloilo church (S. Ciencia) - Flickr.jpg

Shubert Ciencia from Nueva Ecija, Philippines · CC BY 2.0 · Source ↗

Tigbauan Church (Allera Street, Tigbauan, Iloilo; 01-26-2023).jpg

Patrickroque01 · CC BY-SA 4.0 · Source ↗

CARTOGRAPHY

Maps on pages 4–5 were drawn for this issue from OpenStreetMap coastline data, © OpenStreetMap contributors, available under the Open Database Licence (ODbL). Place pins link to Google Maps.

EDITORIAL

Recommendations are drawn from our own Airbnb guidebook and from places we visit ourselves. Opening hours, fares and prices were correct at the time of writing and change without notice — confirm anything time-critical before you travel.

The live guidebook on Airbnb ↗

STAY WITH US

The Palladium — Iloilo Business Park ↗

SMDC Style Residences — Mandurriao ↗

Iloilo & Guimaras

September 2026 · Published for our guests.
Hosted by Shareen Joy · Superhost